OUTSIDE THE SENATE IS FRANK L. SMITH

ILLINOIS SENATOR ELECT BARRED FROM TAKING SEAT

Historic Proceedings of the Upper House When It Decided Against Seating a Duly Appointed Senator—The Choice of the People of Illinois Denied a Seat In the August Body Because, In Their Opinion, Public Utility Companies Contributed too Freely To His Campaign Expenses.

Historic precedent was established in the United States senate Thursday when a majority of that body voted to bar Frank L. Smith, senator-designate from Illinois, from taking the oath of office pending investigation of charges that he expended excessive sums of money in furtherance of his campaign in the Illinois Republican senatorial primary election last spring.

The vote was 48 to 33, 15 Republicans, 32 Democrats and one Farmer-Labor senator voting to exclude him.

Senator Simeon D. Fess voted to seat Smith and Frank Willis voted against him.

Twenty-nine Republicans and four Democrats voted to permit him to take the oath. One other Democrat, Senator William H. King, of Utah was paired in his favor, making five Democrats in all who were willing to receive him in the senate on the strength of his credentials of appointment, regularly executed and in due form by Governor Len Small, of Illinois.

Two votes were taken, both resulting in the same division. The first was on the substitute motion by Senator Lee S. Overman, of North Carolina, to permit him to take the oath of office without prejudice to subsequent proceedings that might be instituted against him, which was defeated, 48 to 33.

The question then came before the senate on the substitute motion offered by Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, to defer the adminisration of the oath until his qualifications had been investigated by the senate privilege and elections committee to which his credentials were referred by the motion.

This motion was adopted, 48 to 33, there being no change in the respective line-up of his supporters and the opposition from that of the preceding vote.

Two days of continuous debate preceded the first roll call, which was begun shortly before 5:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Senators on both sides of the chamber participated in the discussion, which hinged chiefly on the constitutional right of the senate temporarily to reject credentials of appointment from the governor of a state which on their face bore no evxidence nor suspicion of irregularity or fraud.

Collateral issues were injected into the debate from time to time but the burden of the differences of opinion centered around the construction of the constitution which in one section, specifically enumerates conditions which disqualify an applicant, and in another, makes each branch of congress the judge of the election returns and qualifications of its own member.

The question was whether the senate had limited or unlimited power in passing upon admission of a senator-elect or designated. This senate decided its power was not limited.

The Smith case was unprecedented in certain particulars. Precedents were cited, almost without number, to show that applicants for admission against whom charges were pending had been sworn in upon presentation of properly certified credentials, and the investigation conducted subsequent thereto. Instances were cited also where applicants under similar circumstances were compelled to stand aside until the committee to which the credentials had been referred had submitted its report to the senate.

But the Smith case was the first on record in which an investigation of charges against a senator-elect or designate had been conducted before the presentation of his credentials by a committee designated by the senate itself to make such an investigation.

This select committee, headed by Senator Reed, of Missouri, conducted exhaustive hearings in Chicago, last summer, examined witnesses under oath, including Smith himself, and later submitted a formal report showing that more than $400,000 had been collected and disbursed in behalf of Colonel Smith's candidacy for the Republican candidacy for the Republican nomination for senator. This evidence showed further that Samuel Insull, wealthy utility magnate of Illinois, contributed $125,000 to Smith's campaign fund, notwithstanding the candidate was at the time chairman of the Illinois public service commission which had supervision of the public utility companies of the state.

Beauty of the Morning

Have you knowledge of the morning? Do you sympathize with that season of nature? Are you abroad early, brushing the dews aside? If the sun rises on you slumbering, if you do not hear the morning cock crow, if you do not witness the blushes of Aurora, if you are not acquainted with Venus as the morning star, what relation have you to wisdom and purity? You have then forgotten your Creator in the days of your youth.—Thoreau.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires By Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

Cincinnati — J. Harry McGowan, president of the McGowan Pump Co., manufacturers of waterworks machinery may move his company to Ironton if the promises of the Ironton chamber of commerce are carried out, he said. These include the ffoating of a $100,000 stock issue to provide a suitable site in Ironton. The McGowan Pump company has been located here for almost a century.

Hamilton—City council unanimously voted a recommendation that the Erie and Miami canal be abandoned thru here. This view will be reported to the Ohio legislature where D. H. Dearmond, Hamilton senator has offered a bill that the canal route be surveyed for a highway and that the canal be abandoned between Middletown and St. Bernard.

Cincinnati — Mrs. Myrtle Taylor was overcome by gas, when vibration of trucks in the street jarred loose a gas connection in her room, according to police. A neighbor smelled the gas fumes and found Mrs. Taylor, whom she dragged from the rooms.

Cincinnati— Colonel Brent Arnold, 81, for 38 years superintendent of the Louisville and Nashville railroad died at his home from pneumonia.

Cleveland—Trial date will be set today for 36 persons indicted recently in the Cuyahoga county grand jury investigation of justice of the peace officers. Walter Lampe, former constable at Parma, plead guilty Thursday to violation of the dry laws and was sentenced to 13 months in Atlanta and fined $200. Herman Geltman former justice of the peace at Parma and Bert Adams his constable plead guilty previously.

Cincinnati —Atley Storer Hershaw, 69, vice dean of the Ohio college of Dental Surgery, until that college was united with the University of Cincinnati last June, died Thursday. At the time of his retirement Henshaw was principal of Walnut Hills high school.

Injurious Drugs

Hashish is the name of a drug prepared from gum obtained from a plant known as Indian hemp. It is a powerful narcotic and is smoked extensively by the Arabs. Its effects are very similar to those produced by the use of opium. In India a highly intoxicating drink called bhang, is made from hashish. Its use is very injurious to mind and body.

EASTERN TIME CIRCLEVILLE IN NEW ZONE

All of western Ohio east of line of the Baltimore & Ohio system lines from Toledo to Cincinnati, and the portions of Kentucky and West Virvinia along the lines of the Chesapeake and Ohio as far south as Catlettsburg, Kentucky, will go on a standard Eastern time schedule April 3, according to a decision made Thursday by the Interstate Commerce commission.

All the section included in the order is on a central standard time basis at this time except Cincinnati and vicinity, which voted at a recent election to change from standard to Eastern, or daylight saving time. Middletown, Hamilton and Dayton were unable to make the change on account of an adverse decision of the electorate.

The effect of the decision, which was urged by the Eastern Time committee of the chamber working in cooperation with the traffic department will be to abolish central standard time in the zone east of an irregular line from Toledo to Catlettsburg, Kentucky, taking in a small corner of West Virginia along the C. and O. line. Automatically the clocks in all the factories, farmhouses and homes will be advanced an hour just after midnight, April 3, and the old sun time or slow time will become a thing of the past in all of this vast area.

Device May Help Find Ships on Ocean's Bed

Tacoma, Wash. — Forgotten tragedies of the Pacific may soon be revealed by a device adapted from the hydrophone, which detects the grating sound of hulls on the ocean bed. Lieutenant Commander T. J. Meyers of the coast and geodetic survey is sounding the ocean floor up and down the Washington coast and plans to drag a number of locations to establish the origin of strange noises. The geodetic surveyors are working off the mouth of the Columbia river, a graveyard of old sailing vessels.

DAUGHTERS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION

Pickaway Plain Chapter Had Most Interesting Session on Tuesday.

The Pickaway Plains chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution held its second regular meeting Tuesday afternoon, January 18, at the home of Mrs. Frank J. Bennett with Regent Mrs. Clark K. Hunsicker, presiding.

The meeting opened with the Salute of the Flag, led by Mrs. Bennett, our Flag chairman; "I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands. One Nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all." This was followed by repeating "The American's Creed."

After a short business session, Mrs. George Foresman announced that five names of Revolutionary soldiers buried in Pickaway county had been given her as follows; John Renick, John Rowland, William Allison, John Jacob Lutz and George Frybach.

Delegates to the Ohio State conference to be held March 15, 16, 17, 18 at the Neil house, Columbus, were elected as follows; Mrs. Clark K. Hunsicker and Mrs. Orion King; alternates, Mrs. Glenn Nickerson and Mrs Lee Shaner.

Miss Mary Wilder read a history of Pickaway county which showed she had spent many hours in research work and she brought out many interesting details that were highly informative.

Miss Edith Haswell read a sketch of the early history of the city of Circleville, gleaned from facts verified by her parents, old neighbors and early citizens. Her descriptions of the city when it was a circle, when it was squared and the location of the old ditch, were all of great interest to the members of the chapter. Both of these histories will be put on file as they contain much valuable information about the early settlement of both our county and city.

Mrs. Bennett read the Flag code for January which is as follows:

"There can scarcely by any doubt that the earliest use of the new flag in battle was at Fort Schuyler, built on the site now occupied by the city of Rome, New York.

The fort was without a flag or banner of any sort and was invested by the British on the second of August, 1777.

The event suggested to Commandant Peter Gansevoort and his brave officers and men, that they needed the inspiring force of an unfurled flag.

They had heard that six weeks before, congress had created a new flag and being determined to fight with American colors flying, shirts were cut up to form the white stripes, pieces of scarlet cloth were joined for the red and the blue ground for the stars was made of a cloth cloak belonging to Captain Swartout of Dutchess county, who was then in the fort.

Before the sun went down on that day an unique flag—the genuine starts and stripes—was waving over Fort Schuyler. The courageous band of six hundred Americans pluckily resisted the seige for twenty days, when the flag so curiously wrought, waved in triumph over the fort.

A social time followed the program at which time the hostess served light refreshments. The next meeting will be held the third week in February with Mrs. Orion King as hostess.

First Spoons Primitive

The origin of the spoon was very likely a shell fitted to a wooden handle. Caddy spoons, which were only used after the custom of tea drinking was well established, were nearly all with shell-shaped bowls, and were very small at first to fit into the small caddy boxes and the small china cups, for tea was scarce and used in small quantities

The Revolt of the Genii

By WALTER ARNOLD

(Copyright.)

ALBERT OAKHAM was forty years old and unmarried. The reason was that in all those forty years he had never wanted a wife. That was what he told those impertinent people who asked him why he had remained single. When he wanted a wife he reckoned he would get one—he always had got everything he wanted so far. When he was a child his parents spoiled him, and after their death, leaving him with a great fortune, he continued the process by spoiling himself. Aladdin had a lamp and when he rubbed it genii appeared and provided him with anything he wanted—slaves of the lamp. Albert Oakham had something just as good—a checkbook with a huge bank account behind it. When he scratched the checkbook with a pen obsequious genii in up-to-date clothes appeared and brought him what he desired.

And now at forty Oakham scratched the magic book and ordered a wife. Not just any wife, you understand, but a certain one; a young lady whom he himself had picked for the position. Of the genii who responded to the call Albert selected Mrs. Florencia Wareham. Mrs. Wareham was a society woman—that was her business. She had no money, but she knew society from A to izzard and was the most successful matchmaker going.

Now don't for a minute picture Mrs. Florencia Wareham as an old woman. She was not even middle-aged. She had been married off by her parents when she was hardly out of her "teens" to a man much older than herself who had gone into bankruptcy and died a year after their marriage. Mrs. Wareham was only thirty-five, strikingly good looking and bright as they make 'em. Secretly she loathed the part she had been forced to play in the social game, but custom carried her on.

Oakham had met Alice Brixton only twice when he resolved that she was the person he desired for his wife, and had a talk with Mrs. Wareham. Then everywhere Alice was invited Albert was invited. Mrs. Wareham arranged that. She also arranged "accidental meetings" betwen them. Mrs. Wareham's many friends also helped through sheer good nature. Alice was at first a little offish. She had fixed her regards upon a struggling young lawyer not at all in her set, either socially or financially. This much to the distress of her estimable parents, who quivered with hope when Albert Oakham appeared on the scene.

Alice was one of those athletic girls—you know the kind. She was tall, stately, black-eyed. No word regarding matrimony had ever passed between her and her young lawyer. He felt that aspiring to Alice was like crying for the moon and she hesitated to give him the encouragement which would have caused him to overleap all financial and social considerations and seize upon the prize regardless of consequences. Alice soon began to think of her young lawyer with a sigh—to regard him as something desirable but impossible—and to accustom herself to look forward to being Mrs. Alfred Oakham. Everything was going according to schedule—as things always went when Albert Oakham scratched his magic book, though sometimes he had to scratch harder than usual.

Then all at once things began to go wrong. Through some misunderstanding when Alice Brixton was invited to a house party on Long island, expecting to meet Albert Oakham there, Albert wolud be invited to a house party in New Jersey—and the other way about. There were dozens of other little things which seemed to be keping them asunder or destroying their harmony of intercourse. Some hidden, malicious influence seemed to be at work. Albert spoke to Mrs. Wareham about it. They were alone in Albert's library at the time.

"Yes," said Mrs. Wareham, "it is as you say—and I am responsible. You promised me a large amount of money if I would bring about a marriage between you and Alice Brixton. You knew her affections were engaged elsewhere—and so did I. You were afraid that if you plunged boldly in and demanded Alice for a wife you would simply provoke her into going off and marrying her young lawyer out of hand. You wanted my skill to bring about the result desired, and were willing to pay for it. I have taken such contracts before and have not been particularly ashamed. I took this one and became ashamed. I am ashamed of my whole life of sham—society and everything connected with it. Next week I am going to begin as a settlement worker. And I may as well tell you that Alice Brixton was married to her young lawyer, in New Jersey, yesterday—and I was present. In fact, I brought them together."

She arose and started to leave the room. "Hey! Here! Where are you going?" cried Alfred.

"I am going home," replied Mrs. Wareham.

"Come back here; I want to talk to you; sit down," commanded Alfred. She obeyed and they sat there talking for over an hour. Three months later society was dumfounded at the announcement of the marriage of Mrs. Florencia Wareham, widow of the late Zenus Wareham, and Alfred Oakham, Esq.

Mushroom Belongs to Family of Toadstools

In discussing the edible fungi, the layman makes a distinction referring to the poisonous growth as toadstools and the palatable kind as mushrooms, but the scientist makes no such difference. They are all toadstools, some few are deadly, and many are not only harmless but palatable and nourishing food. There are thousands of different species of toadstools, but it is a very simple matter to recognize the poisonous kinds with absolute certainty. Every autumn, when the mushroom, or rather toadstool season is about opening, there are special classes open to the public at the Cleveland Museum of Natural History for the instruction of persons who desire to become acquainted with the toadstool. The course is quite simple and has become very popular. It is not necessary to become acquainted with the entire toadstool family in order to be able to separate the good from the bad. A short course of instruction answers all purposes.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Woman Athlete Honored

Frau Lisbeth Schleider, of Dresden, is the first woman to win the German golden band awarded for excellence in athletic proficiency. The golden band is the highest athletic award given, and can be won only by persons above forty years of age who have kept up for a long period of years a record for faithful training and successful participation in contests. Frau Schleider is a member of Dresden's women's swimming club, Dresdensia.

Little Cannibalism Now

Cannibalism still exists in some tropical countries, but is limited to the area comprising the country 10 degrees north and south of the equator. It is found among isolated South American tribes, in West Equatorial and Central Africa, the Malay archipelago, certain South Sea island, mainly in Melanesia, and in parts of Australia. Head hunting tribes are found in Madagascar.

Nation's True Wealth

The real wealth of the nation does not consist in its money, in the value of its trade or in the extent of its dominion. These are valuable only as they help to maintain a population—and not only a part of it—of the right quality; men, women and children possessing bodily vigor, alert mind, firm character, courage and self-control.—Sir Arthur Newsholme.

Tax on Ears in Tibet

In Tibet there is a tax on ears, and one-eared men are feeling fortunate again. The full tax is levied on men with two ears only and it was the levying of this tax a year or so ago that caused a revolutionary outbreak. One-eared men have to pay only 50 per cent of the assessed tax. Those without ears are completely exempt.

Work

Flexibility Is Big Crop Factor

Rotation Is Long Recognized Principle of Farming Economy.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Flexibility in crop rotation is a long recognized principle of farming economy. Agricultural history contains many illustrations of the use that has been made of this idea from the Middle ages to the present time, especially in Europe. It is commonly observed, however, says the bureau of soils of the United States Department of Agriculture, that uniformity of soil, even on a single farm, is most unusual, and that one field may require an entirely different rotation of crops from another adjoining it. A rotation best suited to a low-producing sandy soil is unlikely to be suited to a highly productive silt loam. Again, a hillside field, subject to soil washing calls for different rotation management from a field on a flat area.

Each Farm Has Problems.

Each farm presents its own problems. The farmer who farms more or less with live stock is not so much concerned with rotation as with the acreage of crops necessary to meet his feeding requirement. The truck grower is concerned primarily with the question of crops in relation to market conditions. In either case rotation is a means to an end, with two aspects: The growing of the desired crops in a manner, or in different rotations, best suited to the soil and crop conditions; and the dovetailing of the different rotations so as to enable the farmer to realize annually the required acreage of each crop he desires.

Influencing Conditions.

Still greater flexibility in crop rotation may be needed, owing to local conditions which may arise, such as insect pests, crop diseases, or weeds. Changing the common fixed rotation may reduce army worm injury, or an additional intertilled crop may help combat some obnoxious weed. Changes in economic or market conditions may compel rotation changes. Any cropping system which will permit of easy alternation is preferable to one that does not possess this quality of elasticity.

Hardiest Alfalfa Seed Is Brought From Canada

For many years it was thought that Grimm was the hardiest known variety of alfalfa and, for that reason, was most desirable for this region, but recently Ontario Variegated, although not a new variety, has come into prominence and has proved itself fully as hardy as Grimm, according to Prof. L. A. Dalton at the New York state college of agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y.

When Grimm was considered the only good variety to plant, the farmers had to pay high prices, and, frequently, they resorted to common alfalfa as a substitute. The common alfalfa, however, came from many sources where the climate was mild, and therefore the seed was unadapted to our severe winters.

Although Ontario Variegated has been grown in Canada for half a century, the production has not been large enough to meet the demand from the United States until during the past five years.

Ontario Variegated is like Grimm so far as one can tell, says Professor Dalton, and this has a bearing on the question of Grimm versus Ontario Variegated. Grimm is higher priced, and in some instances the Ontario Variegated is purchased and resold as Grimm.

The best way for farmers to get genuine hardy Ontario Variegated alfalfa seed, he says, is to buy from reliable seed men and insist on this variety.

Value of Horse Manure When Properly Cared For

Experiments at Purdue university indicate that when properly cared for, the manure from a well-fed horse is worth $14.75 per year; from a dairy cow $18.75; from other cattle $11.60; from a sheep $2.25; and from a hog $2.10. At present, however, only a few farmers are realizing these values because they do not care for the manure properly.

Over half the total fertilizing value of the manure, solid and liquid, is contained in the urine; therefore every reasonable precaution should be taken to prevent its loss. The urine usually contains about three-fourths of the total nitrogen and four-fifths of the total potash. And these are two of the most important elements needed for plant growth.

COTTONSEED MEAL MAY POISON PIGS

Fed In Large Amounts Proved Poisonous; In Small Amounts Was Beneficial.

Cottonseed meal proved distinctly poisonous to pigs when fed as the only protein supplement to corn in a feeding trial just concluded at the Ohio Experiment Station. Pigs fed yellow corn, linseed meal and minerals made comparatively good gains, but several pigs of other groups fed cottonseed meal to the extent of one-fourth and one-fifth of the ration died, the remaining pigs making very uneconomical gains.

Cottonseed meal is at present the cheapest commercial protein concentrate available to the stockman. It undersells linseed meal by $10 to $15 a ton. Where a pound of protein in 34-per cent protein linseed meal at $53 per ton costs 3.8 cents, and the same amount of protein in 60-per cent protein tankage at $80 per ton costs 3.3 cents, a pound of protein in 43-per cent protein cottonseed meal costs only 2.2 cents. On account of such a low price cottonseed meal is being fed to all kinds of stock, more than it has been for years.

For balancing rations for cattle and sheep, G. Bohstedt, chief of the animal industry department at the Experiment Station, considers cottonseed meal entirely harmless, but where it is used exclusively for balancing corn in pig rations, as in these experiments, it is apt to be poisonous, even though good minerals are fed in addition.

In smaller proportions, as where equal parts tankage and cottonseed meal were fed, this cotton product apparently proved harmless and even beneficial in that the pigs gained fully as well and more cheaply than on a corn and tankage ration.

SENATE CONFIRMS BOARD NOMINEES

Columbus, Jan. 20.—Without a dissenting vote in any instance, the Ohio senate confirmed four appointments made by Governor Donahey early this week, at the Tuesday session.

The names of P. F. Casey, Cleveland, and T. M. Gregory, Cincinnati, were confirmed for their positions on the industrial commission, while similar action was taken with respect to Dr. R. R. Smith, Columbus, and Dr. J. W. McGill, Cleveland, who were appointed to the state board of dental examiners.

Wellington T. Leonard, Mansfield, also named by Governor Donahey for a place on the industrial commission, was "withheld for the present."

OVERCONFIDENCE LEADS MOST TRAVELERS ASTRAY

There are two common faults in human nature which account for most of the mistakes made by travelers, points out William P. Walsh, quoted in an article by Hugh Fullerton in this week's Liberty. Walsh, whose position in charge of the information booths of the Grand Central Terminal in New York has thrown him in contact with thousands of strayed travelers, says:

"There are two reasons for trouble and mistakes in traveling. They are overconfidence and lack of confidence. The overconfident traveler makes more serious mistakes than the one who lacks confidence. The fellow who says, 'Oh, I know that train,' has forgotten its time, or perhaps the time has been changed since he took it a year before. It pays to ask questions, if you ask them properly.

"The great majority of inexperienced travelers," Walsh is further quoted, "lack confidence and a sort of bewilderment and panic seizes them when they get into crowds. Half of the questions asked at the information booths in the station are asked by people who know the answer. They ask merely to confirm what they already know. This is natural because inexperienced travelers are timed, often almost panic-stricken with fear of missing a train or failing to meet some one. They lack confidence in themselves and are convinced that they are right only when the information clerk tells them the same thing the time-table does."

FARMERS HAD BIG MEETING ON THURSDAY

Officers Elected and Delegates Chosen For Annual Session of Ohio.

The annual meeting of The Live Stock Cooperative association, The Pickaway Grain company and the Pickaway County Farm bureau at the Memorial hall Thursday, attracted farmers from all over the county and the auditorium was filled to capacity.

The speakers were Miss Jeannette Bane, of O. S. U., Columbus, and Murray D. Lincoln, of the Ohio Farm Bureau federation. The Blenn Bales orchestra furnished music and Miss Elizabeth Hay, of Ashville, rendered a solo.

Miss Bain was the first speaker and she gave a most interesting talk and held the attention of her large audience thruout.

She was followed by Murray D. Lincoln, who had his subject well in hand, and even with the quoting of dry, statistical figures, he kept his speech interesting by throwing in occasionally a little humor thus making a long, but interesting address, entertaining as well.

He dwelt largely on more and better schools, relieving the drudgery of the farm wife and said the farmer is not securing a just amount of money on his investment. He declared the Federal Farm Loan act is one of the best backers of the farmer today.

The resolution committee endorsed an increase of the gasoline tax, compulsory auto liability law, state building of state roads without assessing abutting property holders and also recommended the continuation of the present Farm Bureau management.

The following directors were chosen for the ensuing year: Edward C. Rector, Deercreek township; George M. Scothorn, Walnut; Ralph E. May, Circleville; George H. Armstrong, Saltcreek; H. O. Peters, Madison; Frank Hudson, Scioto; Glenn T. Grimes, Perry.

The following officers were chosen for the ensuing year: President, E. C. Rector; vice president, George M. Scothorn; secretary, Ralph E. May, treasurer, S. B. Chambers.

Directors of the Ladies' auxiliary were Mrs. Cora Rader Hood, of Pickaray township; Mrs. James Swearingen, Jackson; Mrs. J. B. Cromley, Walnut; Mrs. Floyd Lubenbeel, of Darby.

The following delegates were elected to the annual meeting of the Ohio Farm bureau to be held during Farmers' week: Mrs. B. W. Young, Pickaway township and G. B. Teegardin, Madison. Alternates; C. E. Cromley, Harrison and John Frye Jr., Jackson township.

Following the address of Mr. Lincoln and the reading of the reports of the several committees, the president announced that rebate checks would be paid and those who had earned such checks came forward and received their money.

The annual report of the Farm bureau shows that the organization had during the year 1926, a membership of 690 and of this number 523 were paid and 167 in arrears.

The volume of business done totaled $1,139,867.50. Pickaway Grain company $175,080.93. Total $1,314,-948.43.

The rebates issued were; Cream association, $1,550.11; fertilizer, $3,-400.00; Farm loan, $506.13; gasoline and kero, $1,492.94; Pickaway Grain company, $5,100.00; total, $12,-049.18.

France May Sell Prison of "Man in Iron Mask"

Paris.—Plans of the French government to sell the island of Ste. Marguerite, where the "Man in the Iron Mask" was imprisoned for ten years, have met with much antagonism. The report that British capital was planning to turn the island into a model winter resort has brought protestations from every part of the Riviera. The district is already objecting to the numerous subdivisions financed by foreign capital.

The island of Ste. Marguerite, which is about four miles in circumference, is situated at the mouth of the Cannes bay. The "Man in the Iron Mask," made famous by Dumas, was incarcerated in the Ste. Marguerite fortress in 1687. History still disputes his identity. It is reported that the French government has been offered a large sum for the island, but newspapers and societies are fighting the proposed sale.

BRAIN BALANCE MAINTAINED BY HEARTY LAUGHS.

Heatry laughter and good humor aid digestion and help to maintain the balance of the brain, according to scientists. There can be no lasting despondency, they say, where there is gayety. As a factor in maintaining health, the Romans rocegnized good humor as an aid way back in 393 B. C., when the plague was ravishing the Roman population.

It is recorded that in order to counteract its dread influence, the government brought a number of Etruscan comedians to Rome, where their quaint idiom and funny ways made the people roar with laughter. After a few of their performances, it is said the death rate dropped noticeably.

Gayety at the dinner table is a truly great help to digestion. Laughter causes the digestive organs to function freely and sharpens the appetite. Naturally, the quality of the food the housewife sets on her table must be considered as well. Modern home managers, however, are not bothered by this phase of the question of health. They need have no fear of the nutritive worth and purity of the canned peas, beans or tomatoes, or the convenient can of germ-free evapo rated milk they serve. Food manufacturers have solved that problem for them. Evaporated milk is the safest milk known. Peas, beans and other vegetables are cooked better than the ordinary housewife could cook them. But the element of mirth to be injected into the meal period, home managers must suppiy themselves.

There are two kinds of mirth, static and dynamic. The static is a screne sort of good humor, while the dynamic sort is explosive and the most contagious of the two.

FIND TWO COMETS IN SINGLE DAY

Scientists Hang Up New Astronomical Record.

Boston, Mass.—Discovery of a new comet on the same day as the rediscovery of an old one by the man who originally found it was the astronomical record hung up by European astronomers recently, according to Dr. Harlow Shapeley. Doctor Shapley is director of the Harvard college observatory, which acts as a clearing house for news of astronomical discoveries.

The new comet was picked up by Dr. J. Comas-Sola, director of the Fabra observatory at Barcelona, Spain, and following the usual practice, will become known to astronomers as Comas-Sola's comet.

When discovered, it was in the constellation of Cetus, the Whale, which can be seen in the southeastern sky in the evening. It was moving to the southwest, but as it is of the twelfth magnitude, a good-sized telescope is now required to see it.

Neujmin's comet was the celestial visitor which returned, and was picked up the same day by Dr. G. Neujmin at the observatory at Simeis, Russia. Doctor Neujmin originally found this comet on February 24, 1916, and calculated that its orbit would bring it back every five and one-half years. In November 16, 1920, he photographed a strange celestial object, which is believed to have been his comet, but as sufficient observations to accurately determine its orbit were not obtained. this is not certain.

When rediscovered on this trip, Neujmin's comet was in the constellation of Leo the Lion, near the handle of the familiar "Sickle," which can be seen in the eastern sky for a few hours before sunrise. It is even fainter than Comas-Sola's comet, as it was of the fourteenth magnitude.

STAR SPANGLED BANNER BIRTH JUNE 14, 1777

First Carried in Army at the Battle of Brandywine---Among Oldest Banners.

On June 14, 1777, the Stars and Stripes, by act of congress, became the official flag of the United States. Previous to this, at different times and on different occasions, numerous flags (nearly 70) it is said, in number—had floated over the colonies.

On June 14, 1777, the committee reported to congress and the following resolution was passed:

Resolved, That the flag of the United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the Union be thirteen Stars, white on a blue field, representing a new constellation. At the time of the adoption of this resolution Washington said: "We take the stars from heaven, the red from our mother country, separating by white stripes, thus showing that we have separated from her, and the white stripes shall go down to posterity representing liberty.

The first record we have of its being carried by the army in battle was September 11, 1777, at Brandywine. It is interesting to note that during the war of the Revolution the number of stars was 13, in the war of 1812-15 in the Mexican war, 29; in the Civil war, 35; in the Spanish-American war 45; and in the World war, 48 stars. Perhaps you do not know that the American—The Stars and Stripes—is among the oldest of national banners. It is older than the present British Union Jack, older than the French tri color, older than the flag of Spain and many years older than the flags of Germany and Italy. It is a national flag and belongs to the whole people, not only collectively, but individually and every citizen feels that it is his flag, while the flags of many other countries are personal flags."

Rain-Making Machinery Constructed in Russia

Leningrad.—A factory for building rain-making machinery is under construction here. The Leningrad Meliorative institute recently sent a rain-making expedition to the remote trans-Caucasian farming station of Ganji, to make careful experiments in rain production. On the basis of this expedition's report of brilliant success, construction of the factory was begun. Further tests in the Mugan steppe and in central Asia are being made. The nature of the rain-making method and the character of machinery necessary to produce rain on demand have not yet been explained.

AMUSEMENTS

Eclipsing their superb performances in "Behind the Front" Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton march to smashing victory in their latest Paramount co-starring, comedy "We're in the Navy Now," which came to the Met theater last night. "We're in the Navy Now" is the most truthful, excruciatingly funny tale of the war yet protrayed on any screen and the enjoyment evidenced by opening night moviegoers established new laugh records.

Nary a naval comedy situation has been left out of this picture. Big battle scenes showing all manner of ships, hydroplanes and submarines lend a specticular force.

Portrayed by an unusual cast, the laughable side of the Navy has been played to the limit under Edward Sutherland's direction. The story deals with the adventures of a pugilist, Berry; and his manager, Hatton Literally knocked out of the prize ring, they land in a whirlpool provided by the Wirld war. And never was there such a pair of green gobs! Chester Conklin scores a personal triumph as the transport captain, while Tom Kennedy, the chief petty officer adds to the fun.

A love theme involving beautiful Lorraine Sason and Donald Keith runs right thru the hectic experiences encountered by Beery and Hatton.

WHERE ARE YOUR LETTERS?

During the first week of December the Circleville Benevolent association sent out one thousand (1000) envelopes containing one dollar's worth of Christmas Seals and a letter with them asking the recipient to please return the Seals or money. Up-to-date there have been returned about 700 letters, 300 still out.

The first of February the association must send to the Ohio Public Health association an account of the sales how many sold and now many returned. Will all those who read this notice please think over the matter and see what became of your letter. We feel you have laid it aside intending later to answer it. Going over our files we find names on which we depended for the dollar, but as yet no reply. We are making a desperate effort to carry on the work in the schools, giving milk to under nourished children. Please return your seals or money. 19janyd3.

WATCHMAN TO FACE CHARGE INTOXICATED

Columbus—An aged crossing watchman faced arraignment in municipal court on discovery by police of beer and wine in his home following the accident Thursday when a Big Four passenger train plowed into a Dayton & Columbus bus here, killing two men and seriously injuring a third at the crossing he was assigned to watch.

James A. Strope, 60, flagman at the point where the railroad crosses the National road a mile west of Columbus, was released on $200 bond. Witnesses said he failed to warn the bus of the approaching train.

Police found 55 bottles of beer, three kegs of wine and a number of empty bottles when they searched Strope's home.

Police prosecutor Hensel ordered the search when he detected a strong odor of cloves on Stropes' breath as he questioned him following the crash. Stropes told reporters that he flagged the bus.

MATERIAL FOR STARRY FLAG IS HOMEMADE

For Eighty-Nine Years Stars and Stripes Made From Foreign Bunting.

A good piece of history connected with the flag of our country is that relating to the material out of which our flags are made. It is a strange fact that for eighty-nine years after the Stars and Stripes were adopted by the American congress, they were made of foreign material. All thru the War of 1812, and even thru the Civil war, no American soldier marched or fought under a yard of American bunting. The reasons for this condition of things were two; First, no one knew how to make it; and second, no manufacturer dared to invest money in the bunting enterprise because he could not compete with Great Britain for there was no protection duty of flag bunting.

General Benjamin F. Butler, at the request of the secretary of war, undertook with the aid of some young friends in Lowell, Massachusetts, to make a good article of flag bunting. A man was sent to England to learn the process of making it. In 1865, congress put a duty of forty per cent on bunting, and that afforded ample protection. Twelve looms were first started at Lowell and the business increased so rapidly that within twelve years, thirteen thousand looms were engaged in making bunting that could not be surpassed in quality by that manufactured in Great Britain. More than that, the price of bunting was cut down from thirty dollars and thirty-five dollars a piece, to eighteen dollars.

It is worthy of special note that the first American flag, made of American bunting, was hoisted over the Capitol at Washington in February, 1866. It was twenty-one feet long by twelve feet and was the gift of General Butler.

SEEK GRAVES SOLDIERS OF REVOLUTION

Daughters are Collecting Data on the Burial Places in Buckeye State.

For five years the Daughters of the American Revolution of the state of Ohio have been collecting data on the burial places of all soldiers of the Revolution who have been buried in Ohio.

In the early days, families had their private graveyards on their own farms, and unless a member of a family kept some data on deaths, all source of information is lost, for stones have crumbled away, and the plowshare has turned over the soil that was once the resting place of a soldier pioneer.

Realizing that such records are of great value to posterity, and because so many demands come from western states to the state of Ohio asking for data on ancestors who settled here after the war, these patriotic women have searched old cemeteries, hunted out dust-covered records, secured information from descendants, and made many journeys to country burying grounds to read epitaphs that no soldier might be omitted from the Honor Roll.

Putting thought into action the Daughters secured from Governor Donahey instructions to Adjutant General Henderson to plan for the printing of the list, with a part of this data by the state of Ohio, for their files in the Soldiers' Record department, that Ohio might honor the soldiers of the Revolution who sleep on Ohio soil, and that such valuable information might be available for public use.

Therefore the Pickaway Plains chapter is making this appeal to the descendants of Revolutionary soldiers who are buried in Pickaway county, to be certain their ancestor's record is filed, all known data should be given and mailed at once to Mrs. George Foresman, 425 South Court street, Circleville.

THIS IS A DUTY.

Lamb's Laugh

Junior was visiting a farm and saw a lamb for the first time. Being of a friendly nature he wanted to pat it, but, as he approached, the lamb bleated out a loud "Bah-ah." Junior drew back and cried out: "Oh, daddy, that lamb is laughing at me!"—Children, the Magazine for Parents.

The MASTERPIECE of the Oldest Washer Manufacturer

NEARLY fifty years of experimenting and study, backed by unlimited resources, have produced this Model E-25 (Electric) Voss Floto-Plane Washer—and a new era in home laundering.

20% added efficiency is the result of this "Thorough Cleansing with a Light Touch." The dirt is out, but all the wear is left in.

Model E-25 Electric—compactly built, with mechanism enclosed. Heavy, self-draining copper tub—one-piece cast-aluminum lid.

Four-position self-locking wringer with 12-inch cushion rolls. Easily controlled.

Special motor—simple flatbelt drive—cut-gear transmission.

Folding bench.

The Floto-Plane Agitator takes advantage of the tendency of clothes to rise close to surface of water. At this point it functions—where suds are thickest—with no roughing of clothes. It is the water-level agitator that makes washing easier on clothes, gets them cleaner, in less time.

Come in and let us demonstrate this amazing washer to you.

HIGH SCHOOL DEBATING SOCIETIES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—All over Ohio the high school Ciceros are exceedingly busy. A good deal of the eloquence that is being uncorked in the home state is obtained from Washington.

"I always consider the high school debates a good barometer as to what public questions our people are discussing," said C. A. Jones, secretary to Senator Frank B. Willis. "The one question above all others this year in the dozens and dozens of such debates is that of the cancellation of debts owed us by foreign nations. Judging from the large number of requests for material and for the opinion of Senator Willis on that question it figures as the subject of more high school and college debates in our section of the country, than in any other. We are receiving from three to six requests for material on that question every day.

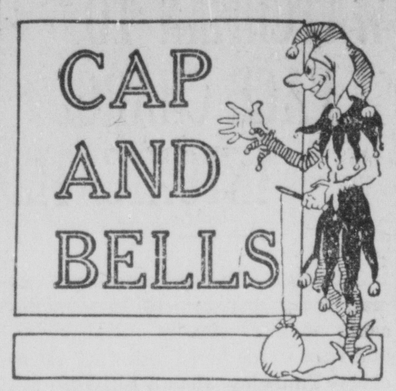
"The question ranking second in importance in the high school debates this year is that of the abolition of the primary. No doubt the submission of a constitutional amendment restoring the convention system, although badly beaten in the election in November, has thrust this primary question into prominence. We are also having some debates on farm relief, the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, the justice of Chicago's withdrawal of water from the Great Lakes, etc. Last year the subjects of debate were entirely different."

Supposed Grail Chalice on Exhibit in Britain

Manchester, England.—A glass cup of the First century, which it is thought might have been one of the four believed to have been used by Christ at the Last Supper, will be placed on exhibition at the Rylands library.

Much secrecy about the cup's Biblical significance is being maintained by Dr. James Rendel Harris, the noted scholar, who now possesses it. It is hoped the cup will throw additional light on certain portions of the gospel text. The cup was discovered in Crimea by a German archeologist who was an associate of Doctor Diessmann, the famous New Testament exegetist of Berlin university.

The cup, broken in transit to England, has been mended. It is golden yellow and was made in a clay mold, probably in the glass factory of Sidon. It is four and one-half inches high and bears an inscription in Greek.



MORE ACCURATE

"Like a total loss. My wife has just spent an hour telling me all the things that are wrong with me."

The Cause

Lawyer—So you want a divorce? What did you and your husband quarrel about?

Mrs. Parks—Well, I said Mrs. Sewell was very beautiful and he agreed with me.

MUZZLING THE PRESS

A bill before the legislature seeks to forbid newspapers to mention or discuss charges against candidates in the 10-day period immediately preceding the election. Probably the purpose of the author is good. Probably the measure is aimed at roorbacks, those frantic eleventh-hour accusations sometimes hurled at candidates when it is too late for them to reply effectively. Roorbacks, however, for some years have been dying a natural death. The newspapers pretty generally discredit and refuse to print them.

But suppose that it should be definitely ascertained within 10 days of the election that some Col. Smith running for high office had accepted large sums from public utility interests and used them to advance his candidacy. Would it be in the public interest that no mention be made of the fact? Moreover, how would this proposed law harmonize with the First Amendment to the Constitution? It seems as if it would be rather difficult to interpret that article of the Bill of Ringhts as meaning that the freedom of the press must not be abridged except for 10 days in every election year.—O. S. Journal.

No, we do not hold "sales." In our plan of modern storekeeping, so-called "sales" are impossible if the savings the public are to enjoy every day are real.

Instead of marking prices up and down now and then for "sales," our plan calls for marking them down as low as is consistent with prevailing market conditions and then keeping them down.

We shall not depart from this plan during the observance of our 25th or silver anniversary which will be in effect this year.

Lowest possible prices every day instead of occasionally at so-called "sales," has been a policy that has won millions of friends for the hundreds of Stores of this countrywide institution.

Age, It Seems, Doesn't Lessen Golfing Skill

That golf is an old man's game is a taunt not so often heard nowadays, when everybody plays it; but when golf was younger and golfers fewer it had often to be endured with such serenity of manners as could be mustered. Perhaps there will be a recrudescence of it now, not, it must be owned, without some justification, because it has just been most gloriously exemplified. The News of the World tournament, which carries unofficially the match-play professional championship of Britain, was recently won by a man who is fifty-eight years old, the evergreen Sandy Herd. That this should be possible does not reflect, perhaps, to the credit of our younger players; it may go some way to explain why they have made so disappointing a showing against the conquering invaders from America. But this is a poor, grudging spirit. Away with melancholy! Let us rather take off our hats to this venerable hero, with no afterthoughts, but with single hearts, full of admiration.—Kansas City Times.

WILD WOMAN FOUND FROZEN TO DEATH

Roamed Michigan Woods for Fifty Years.

Calumet, Mich.—Old Maggie Harrington, forest wanderer, was found frozen to death, eight miles from her dilapidated old cabin near the old Central mine in Copper country, northern Michigan, recently.

She was seventy years old. For the last fifty years Maggie has roamed the forests, fearless of man or beast, at all times of the day or night, as wild as the gray wolf and as harmless as the deer.

Subsisting upon raw and uncooked foods and wild berries, with clothing enough only to decently cover her—no stockings, mittens and no hat, she wandered many miles through the dense forests from one camp to the other and often crouched in the corner of a deserted cabin for the night, away from the howling wolves and sheltered from the bitter north winds when the weather was far below zero. At daybreak she would walk another ten or fifteen miles back to her own stoveless shack, or go on many miles in another direction to some miner's cabin for a cupful of coffee.

Wild Woman's Home.

Her old tumbled-down cabin at Central mine, with windows stuffed with old papers or potato bags, its pile of ashes in the middle of the floor, where the old rusty stove had long since fallen apart, the chairs and kitchen table decayed where they stood, and in the corner of the bare room a pile of dirty rags which served her as sleeping quarters for these many years.

She was often seen by tourists as they drove along the northern highway, but she managed to get into the forest before they reached her.

Maggie had one ride in an auto and that was four years ago when she had an infected foot. That ride took her twenty-five miles to Calumet for treatment.

She was intelligent and had a common school education, and her mother was noted among the old neighbors as a splendid housekeeper, clean and orderly.

Retained Keen Mind.

Maggie had degenerated in the matter of clothing and way of living only; her mind was keen, and what stories she could tell of the wild things she knew so well.

Whatever transpired in the life of this strange woman to change her from a shy, sheltered, golden-haired, beautiful girl as she was fifty years ago at the time her mother died, into a silent hermit of the great forests, no one can say. She kept her own council—shared confidences with none and died with her secret on her frozen lips.

Old Maggie was buried at Eagle Harbor near the spot where she stood over the little grave fifty years ago and cursed the fate that had robbed her of the mother she idolized, and changed her into a wild woman of the great Michigan forests at one stroke.

"Trench Mouth" Attacks Thousands at Trenton

Trenton, N. J.—An epidemic of "trench mouth," a gum infection technically called Vincent's disease, has spread through Trenton in the last few days. The malady, which is traceable to the World war and transmitted from person to person, has effected several thousands, Trenton dentists declare.

Nearby places also are troubled. At the Skillman epileptic village, a state institution, the malady has been so general that physicians were called to launch a fight against it.

"Stop kissing" is the word passed out by the health department in an effort to combat the malady.

The doctors declared the disease was rare in the United States before the war. They say it was brought back by the American Expeditionary forces.

Priest Plans to Restore California Mission

San Juan Capistrano, Calif.—Seventy-one years after President Lincoln signed the land office patent, restoring the lands and building of Mission San Juan Capistrano to the Catholic church for "religious and educational purposes," the ruins of the "jewel of the Franciscan chain" are to be made to conform to the purposes for which the patent was signed.

Rev. St. John O'Sullivan, the Kentucky padre, who came to the mission to die in 1911, but who became so imbued in the restoration of the ruins that he regained robust health, announced that work had started on a construction program which will convert the tumbled adobe of the north wing into quarters for a convent and religious school.

Owner Explains Why Horse Had Odd Name

Among the horses which ran in the College Handicap steeplechase at Windsor, England, recently was one named Escaped Lunatic.

"I gave the horse that rather queer name because I myself was once hunted for, high and low as an escaped lunatic," said Mr. Fleet Goldsmith, a former Hampshire county councilor, who owns the horse.

"I was an inmate of Park Prewett asylum near Basingstoke.

"From there I escaped one night during a motion picture performance, and despite a keen hunt I kept clear for the statutory period of fourteen days, after which the authorities could not claim me without issuing a new certificate.

"When I bought this horse the name Escaped Lunatic took my fancy."

"Dogwood" is supposed to be a corruption of "dagwood," a name equivalent to its other names, "prickwood," "skewerwood"—so called because, being firm, hard and smooth, it is used to make butchers' skewers.

De Laval Oil

Don't experiment with various kinds of oil to lubricate your De Laval Separator. There is just one brand of oil which is exactly suited to the purpose, and hundreds of brands which will not do at all.

Keep the oil cup of your separator filled with De Laval oil and you will get the utmost in separator satisfaction. The machine will turn easier, and give longer and better service.

All light, high-speed machines run better when lubricated with De Laval oil. It gives them the protection they need and is, therefore, the cheapest oil in the end.

Sold in half-gallon and one gallon sealed cans, with a handy spout.

BROTHERHOOD OF LUTHERAN CHURCH MET

After the regular business session of the Lutheran Brotherhood, there being no prearranged program, the new president, Lawrence Goeller, placed before the brotherhood the result of a questionnaire he had sent to the membership which consisted mainly of the following queries:—

"What subject would you like to have discussed in our meetings this year?"

"What would be a good subject for debate?"

"What sort of 'Stunt' program would be worthwhile?"

"In what other way could we improve the Brotherhood programs and attendance?"

Out of a mailing of approximately 150 questionnaires, 38 had responded up to Thursday night and the answers to the above four queries as well as to three others of minor import gave those in attendance many rich morsels for discussion and will be the nucleus around which the 1927 programs will be built. As numerous complaints appeared on the length of the meetings it was decided to limit the meetings from 7:30 to 10 o'clock.

It was also sensed by the membership present that the major effort of this brotherhood should be to put across a building program to more fully take care, particularly of the societies and the crowded Sunday school conditions of the church.

J. D. Hummel and E. Crist offered to put on a fish fry for the next meeting at 50 cents per plate, which offer was accepted and Harry Heffner was appointed to put on the program. This meeting will be on February 3.

BASKETBALL GAME LOST BY CIRCLEVILLE

Buffalo Lincolns Win With Score of 33 to 27---Mendel Tailors Next.

In a fast and furious game, one of those kind that kept you on edge every minute the C. A. C. boys lost to the Buffalo Lincoln's by a 33 to 27 count at the C. A. C. gym Thursday night.

The club started the ball rolling by scoring the first points and during the first quarter is was nip and tuck one team then the other leading but as the end of the half approached the visitors gradually forged ahead finishing on the long end of a 23 to 15 score.

The second half was equally as interesting as the first half. The local quintet taking a spurt, tying the score but were never able to go into the lead and went down fighting every inch of the way, giving the visitors a run for their money.

For the visitors Cortelli was by far the outstanding player also being the high scorer of the game.

The C. A. C. boys played a hard game and altho they came out on the short end of the score feel no regrets in having lost to the Lincolns.

The visitors were clean, energetic sports and go away leaving a warm feeling in the minds of those connected with the C. A. C.

Next Friday night the Mendel Tailors return to this court. They handed the C. A. C. an unearned defeat Christmas night. The C. A. C. boys are going to prove this next Friday so be on hand to see the fun.

Peruvian Traffic Bug

Far up the Amazon investigating scientists found the traffic bug, a nature, busy, voracious and combative, dive of Peru, strangely armored by nature war with many other forest bug citizens, the Ohio State Journal informs. Its name was given for the reason that nature equipped it with a red light on its head and a green light on its tail, the lights showing at all times during the dark hours.

"America Under Fire" to be Shown For Three Days Beginning Jannary 25.

America Under Fire with Corporal Bob Ingleston in person which opens a three days engagement at the Grand theater, starting Tuesday, January 25, under the auspices of the American Legion clearly shows the emphatic way in which America answered the Kaiser's remark when he said, "That America could not, and would not fight." To the average person the war is over, but in this remarkable picture will be found the answer to all questions that have remained unanswered regarding America's participation in the World war, and at the same time shows how untrained and untried American Doughboys met and decisively whipped the best trained army that the world has ever known.

Do you remember the anxious days of waiting, as our boys were fighting in the Argonne, the seemingly endless nights, as the Doughboy was marching on St. Mihiel, the heart-breaking days in July, 1918, as the American soldier was demonstrating his fighting qualities in Champagne, and then just before the first false report was flashed to America that the armistice had been signed and our boys were lying before Chateau Thierry, where the final chapter was written and the news was flashed over the entire civilized world that the Kaiser and his hordes had met their master, as our Doughboys and Leather-necks carried the battle into the strongholds of the enemy and chased his Imperial Highness Kaiser Wilhelm, war lord of Germany, into Holland and oblivion.

This is all a part of ihis remarkable picture and as Corporal Ingleston in his humorous way keeps a running fire of comment up at all times explaining in that unknown language of the Doughboy in France every charge over the top, every artillery duel, every gas attack, every battle in the clouds, in fact every phase of the American activities in which we had a part make the picture more easily understood, and as Corporal Ingleston does not wish his audience to become depressed during the showing of the more gruesome scenes, he endeavors to inject a great deal of humor into his lecture, thereby easing the minds and quieting the heart throbs of those who gave up their all in the cause of World Freedom.

Space will not permit a more detailed account of America Under Fire therefore, we must leave a major portion of this remarkable picture to the imagination and at the same time, without fear of contradiction, emphasize the fact that never before and never again, will the opportunity be given to see actual history in the making, written at it is in the blood of the American soldier that caused the di 1h2aeaaiclehun .umoivxvHnhcv) ns the rivers of France to run as crimson streams and changed the white poppy of Flanders Field to the blood red flower that now grows where the heroic dead of America make sacred the soil of France.

Advance tickets may be secured from any member of the American Legion or Ladies' auxiliary, which will be good at any performance starting January 25, closing January 27. There will be but one show each night, starting promptly at 8:15.
